

BREAKING SOUTHWEST

Much like the melting pot that is the Dallas/Ft. Worth area of Texas from which they hail, Kent Bell, Kyle Gaston, and Lauren Hall became a trio named - Breaking Southwest. This country group represents the Texas pride and tradition, as well as the unique culture and flavor of that region.

In 2015 the trio won the inaugural Cumulus NASH Next artist development competition after an extensive series of challenges that allowed the contenders to showcase their musical and creative talents. As the competition winner, the band received a deal with Nash/Big Machine and digitally released "Ghost Town" in March 2016.

The three singer/songwriters loaded up and moved to Nashville early last year to continue the momentum in their musical journey. The band is hard at work songwriting and recording new music for their next release.

Breaking Southwest delivers a power-packed show filled with original tunes, unique covers, and lots of energy.
